Circular No. 1/2009
Case on Using False Instrument

In a recent case in which an individual was charged by the police for using a false instrument in his application for becoming a registered vehicle mechanic, the defendant admitted the offence and pleaded guilty during the court hearing. Judgment for the case was made by the court where the defendant was fined for HK$500 and was ordered to perform community service for 100 hours. The application from the defendant for becoming a registered vehicle mechanic was therefore not accepted.

We would like to express our concern over the above case and take this opportunity to remind all registered vehicle mechanics of the importance of true representation and the serious consequence of using false instrument.

Thank you very much for your attention.

Yours faithfully,

( Andrew YAN )
for Director of Electrical and Mechanical Services
